Reading

3ps.

A) Read the following passage and select a True or False response.

Learning to respect other cultures is important for having new experiences and learning about the world. One of the first steps to learning about other cultures is to simply accept that there are many different cultures that exist other than our own culture. One of the most important ways to learn to become respectful of other cultures is to spend more time reflecting on our own. Then it is important to understand something about other cultures.

For those who want to learn about other cultures, but do not know where to start, a great place to start is reading about the cultures that interest them. In today's world, if we all are able to know about other cultures and respect them, life would be easier for most of us.

29. Respecting various cultures is necessary.

30. The word "steps" in line 2 means "stages".

31. It is impossible to learn about other cultures through reading about them.

32. To learn to be respectful of other cultures, we should be respectful of our own culture.

33. Some people may not know how to start learning about other cultures.

34. It is not important to accept that other different cultures exist in addition to our own.

B) Read the following passage and answer the questions carefully.

Our bodies need the energy to keep us alive and our organs functioning normally. The amount of energy in an item of food or drink is measured in calories. When we eat and drink more calories than we burn, our bodies store the extra amount as body fat. If this continues, you will gain weight over time; it could mean you have been regularly eating and drinking more calories than you have been using. The number of calories that we use varies depending on age, size, and levels of physical activity, among other factors. The more you do an activity, the more calories you'll use. For example, fast walking will burn more calories than walking at a slow pace.

Knowing the calorie amount of food and drink can help you make sure you're not using too much. This information can appear on food packaging. The product labels on the packaging give you key information about the product. Also, to learn about calorie information, you can have easy access to a wide range of online calorie counters on your computers and mobile phones. Many of these can be downloaded and used for free. They are also helpful to inform you of the calories you use by recording all of the food you eat in a day. To have a healthy lifestyle and a fit body, consume calories that meet the needs of your body, and eat a well-balanced, low-fat diet with lots of fruits, vegetables, and whole grains.
